February 9th, 2019
9:30am – 12:30pm

Tempe Public Library
3500 South Rural Road, Tempe
Connections Program Room
(Next to Connections Café)

In this workshop we will discuss recent information from developmental science describing the effects of trauma experienced by infants and toddlers. What is traumatic for children during this developmental period? How are these experiences carried forward, and how might they influence social relationships and learning? During this session we plan to offer substantial time to address and discuss with participants from an infant mental health perspective common and persistent questions about such topics and constructs as: Adverse Childhood Experiences, complex developmental trauma, neurological and “sequential” approaches to understanding the consequences of trauma, and more. After an introductory overview we will address your questions, comments, experiences, and opinions during this interactive portion of the workshop. The workshop will address competencies required for ITMHCA Endorsement for Culturally Sensitive, Relationship Focused Practice Promoting Infant Mental Health at Levels 2, 3, & 4.

The cost is $40.00 for ITMHCA members; $50.00 for non-members.
Seating is limited
